Kenyatta Chandler Named Chief Financial Officer of Ohio Development Services Agency

Through sound metrics, transparency and accountability of taxpayer money, the Ohio Development Services Agency works to grow Ohio businesses and strengthen Ohio communities. Kenyatta Chandler has been selected as the Agency's Chief Financial Officer, leading the Agency's finance, loan and budget teams. Chandler starts as Chief Financial Officer on Monday, December 9, 2013. Currently, he serves as the Agency's Loan Administrator.

"Kenyatta will be an asset to our leadership team. His extensive public and private sector experience will provide the Agency with the tools it needs to ensure transparency and accountability of taxpayer dollars," said David Goodman, director of the Ohio Development Services Agency.

Kenyatta has more than 20 years of public and private experience in financial management and technology implementations. He is a former business manager from the Office of Budget and Management with extensive experience in financial services. Chandler also served as the administrator of treasury management services at the Ohio Treasurer's Office. He implemented and managed a number of innovative electronic payment programs for Ohio as the Statewide Credit Card Program Manager.

Kenyatta has a Bachelor of Science degree in organizational leadership and a Masters of Business Administration degree in management information systems from Franklin University. He is a member of the Association of Financial Professionals, Government Finance Officers Association and NACHA – The Electronic Payments Association.
